
What A Still!

By Bill Vaughan

On September 11, 1978, Appomattox County deputies and Virginia ABC investigators raided an illegal distillery in the Bent Creek area of Appomattox County. Shown above are parts of the still recovered: on the left side of the picture you see the part called the still; the top part of the still is called the cap. The long pipe is called the connecting rod, and small barrel on the right is called the cooling barrel. On the end of the vehicle is seen two smaller stills. First there is a fire put under the still, the corn inside the still evaporates and goes up to the cap through the connecting rod into the coil in the cooling barrel. The water inside the cooling barrel cools the evaported gas then what comes out the cooling barrel is good "corn liquor"

Fulmer Lee Burks of Route 2, Gladstone was charged with the illegal manufacture of whiskey.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A disc jockey explains: Although my uncle died recently of cancer, my mother was treated for cancer ten years ago and is now free of cancer and healthy. Do people realize that, while cancer does kill, some people are actually cured of this disease?"

ANSWERline: The facts are these: there are over 3 million Americans alive today who have a cancer history and 2 million of them were diagnosed five or more years ago. The American Cancer Society estimates that one-third of all people will get cancer this year will be alive five years from now. An outstanding example of a cured cancer patient is William Gargan, the film star, who was treated for cancer 17 years ago and has been active and healthy ever since. Because of the possibility of cure, it is important to detect cancer in an early stage when it is most easily treated. For important information contact your local American Cancer Society Unit.

A cargo inspector writes: "My mother is a heavy cigarette smoker and I would like to get some information for her. What is available in Spanish?"

ANSWERline: The hazards of cigarette smoking for women are clear. Your local American Cancer Society now has special pamphlets for women on the tobacco and health issue. Ask for "Cuando Fuma La Mujer", a helpful pamphlet in Spanish offered to the public free of charge. Your unit may have volunteers who can speak with your mother in her own language and who will offer practical help in quitting.

A social club president writes: "We would like to do a program about some common forms of cancer. What are they?"

ANSWERline: Six major sites of cancer are (1) lung cancer, which will strike some 102,000 Americans in 1978; (2) colorectal cancer, with 102,000 cases; (3) breast cancer, which will strike 91,000 American women in 1978; (4) uterine cancer, both cervical and endometrial, which will strike 48,000 women; (5) skin cancer, with over 300,000 cases; (6) oral cancer, with over 24,000 cases. Your local American Cancer Society Unit has a new series of free pamphlets on these forms of cancer available free of charge to the public. Your local Unit also has volunteers eager to help you plan a program complete with films and speakers.
